KITCHEN HECKER GUTHRIE

PILLAR OF STRENGTH

A reviled column became the inspiration for a fresh design.

INTERIOR DESIGNER PAUL HECKER OF HECKER GUTHRIE "A support pillar was one of the elements of the outdated kitchen that the client despised most and that was the catalyst for change. Due to structural constraints, the pillar had to remain, so we approached the kitchen by making it into a room within a room. As a result, we were able to cleverly hide the pillar within a wall of double-sided glazed joinery, which has since become the perfect mini conservatory." What luxury item did you choose for this kitchen regardless of budget? "The client was happy to specify the best Calacatta marble she could. We felt that this was money really well spent."
